Why Vitamin D3?

Vitamin D3 plays an essential role in the metabolism of the calcium. In its active form, it facilitates absorption of calcium from the intestine, enhances fluxes of calcium to growing bones and controls kidney excretion of this same mineral.

Why Vitamin K1?

Osteocalcin is a protein which is considered a specific marker for the bone metabolism. It ties calcium ions and it has hydroxylapatite affinities, it's believed that it can intervene during the bone mineralization. It's activity is expressed only after the intervention of the vitamin K1, fundamental for its carboxylation.
